'Twas the night before bench roll

By Ethan Currie

As the holiday season approaches, we carry on (with glee!) through NBC's 2025 Economic Advent Calendar. Let's see what's behind Door #13... (See page 2 for full schedule of past and upcoming releases in this series).

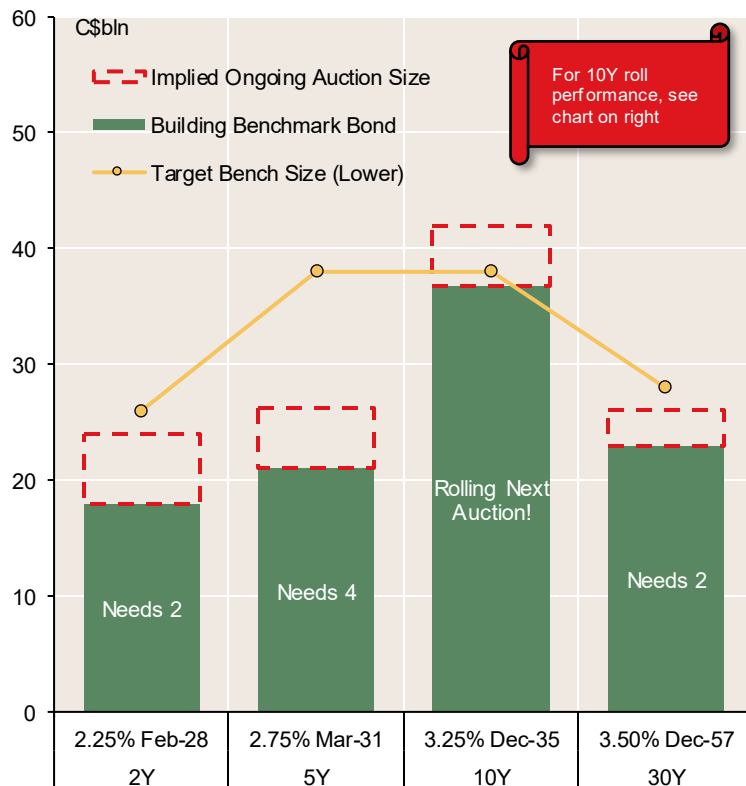

Are you finding it hard to sleep? We wouldn't be surprised if the anticipation is keeping you up—just think of all the GoC excitement heading your way... a benchmark roll, fresh QBS, and NBC analysis to track it all!

Tomorrow, we'll get the final GoC bond auction of the quarter. $5.25 billion of the Dec35 bond will be up for grabs in what is its final re-open before claiming 10Y benchmark status. We'll have a regularly scheduled Auction Preview out in the morning (similar to the report sent out ahead of today's 5Y operation), but we wanted to offer a sneak peek.

The Dec35s will have $42bln outstanding after tomorrow's auction, sufficient to take over as the benchmark bond (target range is $38-$46bln). Recent taps have showed strong demand for the issue, and continued relative performance is expected as liquidity builds further. Consistent with the empirical record, the building roll (Dec35-Jun35) outperformed the current benchmark roll (Jun35-Dec34) since it was initially issued—in this case, tightening by ~half a point vs a slight steepening from the outgoing 10Y roll. The NI roll has outperformed the current 10Y roll in 13 of the last 15 instances (by an average factor of 2bps). So, perhaps not a Christmas miracle, but just as exciting for those investors who have sought to capitalize on yield picks offered up by fresh GoCs.
